TakeSure — Logo concepts for Quest 1 (Logo Maker)

Team Bug Hunters · Hack@BVP 8.0 · Four original concepts in the product's own colours, each delivered as mark, lockup (dark/light), app icon, transparent PNG and editable SVG

Recommendation: submit Concept A, "The verified pair". It says the whole idea in one shape (a capsule that is half medicine, half leaf, with a verdict tick), it is readable at 32 px as an app icon and at poster size, it works in one colour, and it is unmistakably ours. Concept B is the strongest alternative if the judges prefer a "safety" feel.

Concept A — The verified pair RECOMMENDED

What it means

- One capsule, two halves. The saffron half is the allopathic medicine; the emerald half is a leaf — the Ayurvedic product. They are one object because the patient takes them together; nobody checks the pair, TakeSure does.
- The tick badge is the verdict: a checked, sourced answer. It sits at the junction, where the two systems meet.
- The split line is the moment before taking something — the pause the name is about.
- Colours: saffron (#F4A300) for allopathy and India, emerald (#0F5A43) and mint (#3DD598) for Ayurveda and safety. Navy wordmark on light, white on dark.
- Simplicity: three shapes, two colours, no gradients, reproduces in one colour and in a 32 px favicon.

Concept B — Shield of two systems

What it means

- A capsule and a leaf lie inside a shield and together form a tick mark: the medicine is the short stroke, the leaf is the long stroke. Only when the two are checked together does the tick appear.
- The shield says safety layer, the inner outline suggests a second review.
- Best if the judges value a protective, trustworthy tone over a playful one.

Concept C — The verdict ring

What it means

- The ring is the product's own GREEN / AMBER / RED verdict scale, with green dominant because most careful combinations are safe. Inside, the same pair; below, the tick.
- Communicates the "traffic light" instantly; slightly busier at small sizes, so better for web headers than for a favicon.

Concept D — One seed, two systems

What it means

- A single seed/drop split down the middle — saffron allopathy, emerald Ayurveda — with a tick cut through both halves. Reads as "one answer across two systems".
- The most minimal of the four; strongest as an app icon, least descriptive on its own.

Text to paste into the form (description field)

TakeSure — "Confidence before taking something" — is an Ayurveda × Allopathy herb–drug interaction checker. The logo is a single capsule made of two halves: the saffron half is the allopathic medicine, the emerald half is a leaf, the Ayurvedic product. They are one object because patients take them together while nobody checks the pair. The tick badge at the junction is TakeSure's verdict: a checked, sourced answer rather than a guess. Saffron stands for allopathy and India; emerald and mint for Ayurveda and safety. The mark uses three shapes and two colours, works in one colour, and stays legible from a 32-pixel app icon to a poster. Original artwork created by Team Bug Hunters.

Files in the "TakeSure Logo" folder on the Desktop

File	Use
takesure_A_mark_transparent.png (1200 px)	Upload this for the quest — transparent background, mark only takesure_A_lockup_light.png / _dark.png (2100 px)	Logo with wordmark and tagline for slides, PDFs, website header
takesure_A_appicon.png (1200 px)	App icon / favicon / WhatsApp display picture
takesure_A_mark.svg, _lockup_*.svg	Editable vector source (open in Figma, Illustrator, Inkscape, Canva)
Same set for concepts B, C and D	Alternatives

Palette: Saffron #F4A300 · Emerald #0F5A43 · Mint #3DD598 · Navy #14213D · White. Wordmark: Bahnschrift Bold (fallback Segoe UI). Keep clear space equal to the tick badge around the mark; never stretch; never place the saffron half on a yellow background.